

Poultry News

Mr. P. A. Cook is much better and many friends will be pleased to see him out soon.

Joseph Nealer, the White Orpington breeder, has just sold a stunning hen to Mr. G. Brown, of North Plainfield.

John F. Dorvall has the first early chicks out, so far as recorded. Couldn't be surprised to see the Johnny join the new association and do some showing himself.

Hilary Watts and Kimball, the Buff Orpington specialist, have a pool on the winter laying contest. Watts has the Barred Rocks and the Prospect street man takes the big English owl.

With the Garden Show out of the way more attention will be paid to getting the plans under way for the spring campaign. Raise good birds and let the mongrels go to the butcher.

Locally and on a somewhat smaller scale our boys are showing at Camden this week and Councilman-elect Beck and Mr. Whitney are representing the "N. J. Association for Poultry Improvement."

Now we are not going to let poultry men rest a minute. Remember the big first annual show about a year hence. Mate up your pens and be ready, first for the try-out at Dongan Hills and our own big show.

Hilary Watts, our leading Barred Rock breeder, has just sold a beautiful hen of his favorites to Mr. G. Ahrensberg, of Plainfield. The Elm Street boy ought to please his big customers for Hilary has the best line of Rocks ever raised in Westfield.

Remember, it's the last call for charter members. We gladly welcome the person who desires better poultry and who seeks information on raising the same. You will find it a most congenial and interesting sport. We are in to help one another and intend to make this State the headquarters for the best in the market. Knockers, boosters, fault-finders, know-it-alls and anonymous letter-writers don't come—it's no place for you.

The twenty-third and last annual show to be held in Madison Square Garden, opened last Monday with a very large exhibit. Every class was well filled with some of the choicest specimens of England, America and Canada. The judging was excellent and a party from Westfield will join a Plainfield crowd tomorrow and all hands will be chock full of chicken talk for the rest of the winter. Vale Garden.

Our trip to Paterson was cut short last week. Mr. Taverner's auto had a stubborn turn and had to be sent to the operating table. Mr. Taverner was in the swim all right at Paterson last week. In the pullet class there were twenty-seven entries and he won second; and in the hen class there were thirty-three specimens and he won fifth. This is a creditable showing amongst all the large breeders of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Well! Well! The list is rapidly growing and the new association can boast of about twenty new members the past week. There is some talk of limiting the membership, for if they come in this way it will be necessary to hire a pretty big hall to hold the meetings in. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday evening, January 3, in J. O. U. A. M. Hall, Plainfield, and it is the last chance to be a charter member. At this meeting officers will be elected for the ensuing year. Every person interested in poultry improvement is cordially invited.

At last the Staten Island Fair Association (Dongan Hills) came across with checks for premiums won at the recent show. This sets at rest some of the rumors for the knockers who have been putting in time writing anonymous letters to the superintendent. The cause of the delay was the absolute necessity of the secretary's appearance in Albany, where he held an important clerkship immediately at the close of the fair. They are going to have a bigger and better fair next year. New Jersey will send the largest number of birds ever shown in the tents. If the "N. J. Association for Poultry Improvement" is not presented.

DENTISTS MEET.
Drs. W. W. Gill and Chauncey F. Egol attended the meeting of the Plainfield Dentists' Association at the Homestead, Watchung avenue, Plainfield, last Wednesday evening. Interesting addresses were given on "Operative Dentistry," and "The Preservation of the Pulp of Teeth," by Drs. A. R. Starr and J. P. Stein, of New York City, after which a dinner was held. Many dentists from all over the State were present.

ST. PAUL'S MEN'S CLUB HOLD MEETING
At a meeting of the executive committee of the Men's Club, of St. Paul's Parish, held at the Rectory, Friday, it was decided to ask Senator Prince to pay another visit to Westfield to deliver his famous lecture on "Music." The lecture, much enlarged, will be given on an early date in January to the public, at a hall to be named later. A regular meeting of the club with entertainment will be given at the rectory this evening.
